

Co-Planning and Co-Serving Workshop Series

Description:

Educator teams will learn the WHYs and HOWs of a co-planning and co-serving service delivery model, including co-teaching instructional approaches and the critical components of co-teaching. Participants will reflect on their roles as general educator and intervention specialist individually and as a collaborative team.

Participants will delve into differentiation through co-serving and meeting the needs of all students in the inclusive setting through thoughtful co-planning. Strategies for students to approach learning as well as behavior management strategies for the classroom will be emphasized. Both instruction and assessment/grading are important when co-serving and data collection/analysis will be discussed. Also, it is imperative that specially designed instruction be delivered and monitored within the co-taught environment to address and support underlying skills that are barriers to success in the general education environment.

Teachers will have the opportunity to collaboratively implement their newly acquired skills between sessions and reflect on the successes and opportunities for growth during each session.
